

The fourth stage of the abolition of restrictions related to COVID-19

I. OPEN SPACE: SOCIAL DISTANCE OR MASK (from 30 May)

If you can keep 2 meters away from others in an open space, you don't have to cover your mouth and nose. So, you can walk, cycle, walk on the street, park, beach or car park without a mask - but only if you keep the right social distance.

Attention please! If you can't keep a 2-metre distance from others in the open air - for example on a crowded pavement - then you need to cover your mouth and nose. It's about our common security.

Let's remember! Parents with children in need of care are excluded from the obligation to maintain a 2-metre social distance (under the age of 13), people living together, people with disabilities, people who cover their mouths and noses.

Here you must cover your mouth and nose!

- buses and trams,
- shops,
- cinemas and theatres,
- food courts (before the client sits down to the table),
- massage and tattoo parlours,
- churches,
- offices (if you go to take care of something).

Exceptions. Where don't you have to cover your mouth and nose?

- At work - if the employer ensures adequate distances between workstations and meets the sanitary rules.
- In a restaurant or bar - when the customer takes a seat at the table.

II. ABOLISHING THE LIMIT OF PEOPLE - IN SHOPS, MARKETPLACE, POST OFFICE, RESTAURANTS (from 30 May)

• Trade and gastronomy

Until now, there had to be a certain area or number of counters per 1 person. From 30 May, this rule will cease to apply.

Attention please! In food courts, there must still be an adequate distance between tables. And customers have to wear masks before they sit at the table. All sanitary guidelines remain in force, including disinfection of hands and tables.

Important! Remember that in the shop, at the marketplace and the post office there is still an obligation to cover your nose and mouth. And in the shop, mandatory hand disinfection or wearing gloves.

• Religious celebrations and funerals

The abolition of restrictions will also apply to churches and other places of religious worship.

Important! In churches and temples, believers must cover their mouths and noses.

III. GATHERINGS UP TO 150 PEOPLE (from 30 May)

In open spaces, it is allowed to organize gatherings as well as open-air concerts with up to 150 participants. However, participants must cover their mouth and nose or keep a 2-meter social distance.

Important! The sanitary-epidemiological station will make recommendations where, due to the epidemiological situation, gatherings or open-air concerts should not take place. The final decision, however, lies with the relevant local government unit.
